Health Care in Small Communities

Mr. Speaker, health care in small communities is not serving the needs of small community residents. There are numerous firsthand experiences of repeated misdiagnosis, which can lead to fatal outcomes for patients. The Department states that “regular audits are undertaken at each health centre”. Can the Minister of Health and Social Services provide:

1. The results of the audits undertaken at each health care centre in the Deh Cho region in the past five years;
2. The results of any data collected from health care centres related to client satisfaction of Indigenous people, specifically in the Deh Cho region;
3. The prioritized topics of each health care centre audit in the Deh Cho region over the last five years; and
4. Details on how the audits assess misdiagnosis, and the results of what is known about misdiagnosis in the Dehcho region.
